

Alex Schwartz

Project 2 Milestone 4

Project reflection: Reflect on your process both from the creative side as well as from the tactical side for this app. What went well? What didn't go so well? What would you do differently next time?

I enjoyed working on the Android version of my Wayfinder application. I improved the user interface and sorted the array, and figured out a better structure for my data. Like the feedback from my last critique, it would have been nice to include a button that opens a separate activity that displays a picture and information about the target building. Overall, I am pleased with the amount of work I completed and am excited to further develop this application. My end goal will be to include a main activity that allows users to select a university before reaching the activity that I have completed. I want to add the top 50 universities in the US and market my app to incoming freshmen across the country on Facebook,